Subject: Response from Canadian Heritage - Funding through CCAY to Redwire magazine

Hello.

This publication is funded by the Aboriginal Peoples' Program of the Department of Canadian Heritage through a third-party agreement with the National Association of Friendship Centres, and funding is administered, in turn, by the British Columbia Association of Friendship Centres. The Department of Canadian Heritage does not interfere with the editorial or creative content of this publication or any other publications.

In 2007, the British Columbia Association of Aboriginal Friendship Centres indicated that it does not condone the content of this article. The Department of Canadian Heritage is mindful of the fact that the delivery of the Cultural Connections for Aboriginal Youth (CCAY), formerly known as Urban Multipurpose Aboriginal Youth Centres Program, is delivered in compliance with all applicable laws.

The Department of Canadian Heritage will continue to work with the British Columbia Association of Friendship Centres to ensure that projects carried out by any recipients that receive funding under our programs comply with all applicable laws.

Redwire Magazine was supported financially by the CCAY program from 2002/03 to 2008/09 and is recommended for funding in 2010/11 for $58,000. Redwire Magazine also receives funding from the Canada Council for the Arts.

Since 2002 Redwire Magazine has received $1,052,653. The annual funding breakdown is as follows:

- 2008-2009: $126,527
- 2007-2008: $150,000
- 2006-2007: $167,263
- 2005-2006: $172,348
- 2004-2005: $179,077
- 2003-2004: $137,826
- 2002-2003: $119,612
